Numerous

studies have demonstrated that using natural methods of fertility awareness contributes to a healthier life.

When used properly, fertility awareness-based methods are as effective, or better, for achieving or avoiding pregnancy, without potentially life-threatening side effects. Charting can also offer a clue to the trained health professional for early diagnosis of endocrine or metabolic diseases<sup>[1]</sup>. Since nursing and medical programs do not teach these facts, the Billings Ovulation Method Association is embarking on an initiative to teach the science to healthcare students. Each medical professional who learns the Billings Ovulation Method® will lead thousands of women and their families to this healthier way of life.
